To see ourselves as others see us is what a mirror provides, a chance to go into other worlds and gain new perspectives on ourselves and others. This 2-Day workshop is for those who want to be able to acknowledge and celebrate roles that have enabled them to survive and thrive, to take on and create new roles to enhance and develop their relationships, or fine tune old roles for new situations. Participants can expect to learn about role theory, role training as applied in work and life, and gain techniques that have relevance. It will suit educators, community and group leaders and therapists.
